

Founded in 1992, START promotes science capacity development that advances knowledge and action on critical sustainability challenges.

START's work targets early- and mid-career researchers and professionals who work at the interface of science and action in Africa and Asia.

